“Coconut Marie Ward was a lot more than just a dog. She was there during my darkest times, wiggling her tail and licking my tears away. She was the companion I did not deserve. Coco was unconditional love personified. She was the best girl, always well behaved and friendly to everyone. Her life was short but the memories made in that time will live forever. She will be greatly missed by everyone that knew her. I could not ask for a better guardian angel watching over me until I join her in Heaven. Until then, I hope she is getting all the belly rubs and treats that she wants from Jesus.

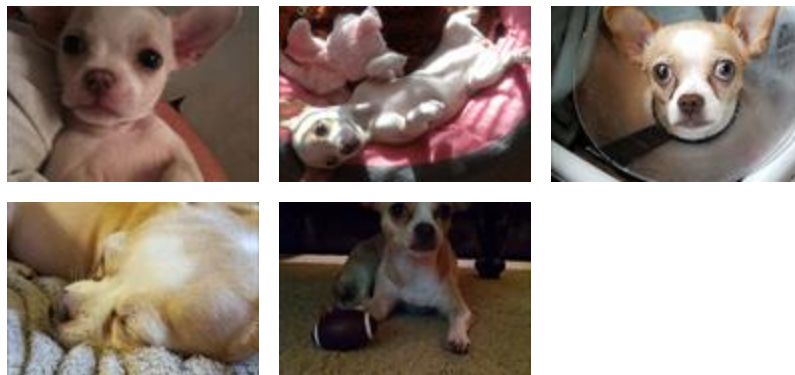

Coco, you were loved more than you ever knew. I did the best I could to take care of you and raise you to be the companion I needed. It hurts my heart that you were taken from me at such a young age but I guess you fulfilled your purpose on this Earth. I will try not to be sad for very long, sweet girl, for I know that you aren't sick and hurting anymore. One day I'll be able to think about the times we shared and it won't be so painful. But even though you're now a memory, you'll be one of the memories I cherish the most.
