“ Other than the love of God, you will never experience unconditional love on earth until you let a dog into your life. No human will ever make you the complete center of their universe the way a dog does. A dog will focus 100% of their love and faith on you and trust in you completely. No human love can even imagine this kind of dedication. A dog can show you more honest affection with a wag of his tail than most humans will achieve in a lifetime. We’re supposed to tell our human partners every day how much we love and appreciate them – but even in the best of relationships that eventually grows stale and robotic. Not so with a dog. The greatest fear a dog has is the fear that you won’t come back when you go out the door without them. Dogs are how people would be if the important stuff is all that mattered to us. A dog is the one absolutely unselfish friend that woman or man can have in this completely selfish world; the one friend that will never desert you, the only one that will never prove ungrateful or treacherous. Before I had Elvis I used to say that we wouldn’t see our pets in heaven, but if there was ever one of God’s creations that should be there it is a dog. Elvis was a diabetic for almost 4 years, and I had to check his sugar twice daily, and took several pills a day, the last thing I said to him before he took his last breath was, no more pokes no more shots and no more pills, then he passed... he was always my little man, my Dennis the Menace, and I will miss him for as long as I live...
