

Jack Curry

May 1, 2014

No obituary found for this tribute.

Tribute Wall

GG

“ We know exactly how you are feeling in the loss of your precious companion. We have lost our beautiful, sweet golden retriever to cancer and last year our little Shih Tzu to heart failure. We thought we would never stop grieving, and to this day speak of them often. We adopted a wonderfully grateful cocker spaniel last year. She is now facing the same congestive heart failure that befelled Bailey. Please know we understand your grief and are praying for you and Mike.

---

Gaye Garner - May 16, 2014 at 06:52 PM

FC

“ As I sit here and try to communicate about my dog as I am sure everyone else feels the same way, I find it impossible to articulate how almost perfect Jack was as a dog. Initially, I was not too keen on having a dog but he grew on me like cud sue. He was so well behaved that people would stop me wherever we went together and comment on how well behaved he was. Even our post lady said he was the best dog she had ever encountered. Everyone in our neighborhood knew who Jack was because he would greet everyone when walking the sidewalk with his warm, happy greeting that all looked forward to seeing. Because of his excellent behavior, we were able to enjoy him to the fullest. He never ran out into the street without being given permission, he did not run after other dogs, and he did not leave our front porch without permission. He loved sitting on our front porch and watching all the activity as well as sitting on his ottoman in front of the window where he watched all the neighborhood activity. Throughout my time with Jack, I have had some major surgeries. Jack has been the best companion next to Mike, my husband, that I could ask for. He never left my side wherever I was. He was truly a great dog, the best dog ever and we are going to miss him terribly. Love you Jack and looking forward to seeing you in heaven.

---

Freda Curry - May 14, 2014 at 06:32 PM