“ Jake's life started out on an autumn day in October of 2005. He was quite the pup. He resembled his mother and the owner at the time was quite taken with him. However, circumstances would not allow for them to keep the puppies. So off to the parking lot of Lowes they went. The best things in life are free, and in Jake's case it was definitely true. Jake was as handsome as he was intelligent. He loved people and other dogs. He loved attention. He was very sweet and mild mannered. He was the best thing for twelve years in our family and we enjoyed those twelve years with him immensely. God gained a precious soul in Heaven. Until we see each other again at the rainbow bridge, farewell.
