“ You came into my life as a wiggly ball of yellow, white fur with a black nose December of 2004. You taught me as I taught you the 'rules' of the house, but you also had your own set when I was gone for more than a day. Your kangaroo hop for meals and your high pitched bark for attention was your trademark. Your hello was to nose an visitors crotch and less they leave the lid up, the toilet was your water bowl. 2 jars of mayonnaise and bottles of Gatorade were no match for your paws to open. Your sister, Maggie, came to stay when you were 10 months old and she is now 13. Life is quiet without you, but I promise that the 11 years you were a part of life here was never dull and always full of love. Thank you for sharing your energy and heart. Missing you!
