“ Sid was always full of life, with a spark of mischief. An avid adventurer, he left no corner unexplored and gave everything a full investigation. He appreciated a variety of cuisine. An active member of the chipmunk patrol, he maintained surveillance from the kitchen windows and had an ongoing dialog through the window with the chipmunks, squirrels and birds on the back deck. Most mornings began with a race through the house with his brother. He was a first class lap warmer. Any reading material and on-line activities were scrutinized by Sid. We have no doubt he knew he was loved, as he returned the affection with purrs, head butts and loving interaction. He is greatly missed by his human family and his feline brother Sundance.
